

National centre for family violence and sexual violence research and information

Pānui | Newsletter - Issue 125 February 2024

Kia ora Gay,

Nau mai, haere mai and welcome to our first NZFVC Pānui for 2024. It feels a bit strange to say “ngā mihi nui o te tau hou Pākehā | Happy New Year!” when we are heading into March, but hei aha. A lot of change is on the horizon as the government works to implement its 100 day plan.

Briefings to Incoming Ministers (BIMs) have recently been made public. These reports are formal documents that government agencies provide to new ministers when they take up a portfolio - you can read more about the BIMs relevant to family violence and sexual violence below.

In other news, the NZFVC are hosting a panel event 'Recognising and responding to coercive control and systemic entrapment' on Monday 11th of March. This is a free, in-person event. We look forward to seeing you there, see below for more information about the event and how to register.

Ngā mihi nui ki a koe,

Charlotte and the NZFVC team

Briefings to Incoming Ministers outline key issues for family violence and sexual violence have been released following the general election held in 2023 and the formation of the National-Act-NZ First Coalition Government.

The Briefing to the Incoming Minister (BIM) reports are formal documents that government agencies provide to new ministers when they take up a portfolio. BIMs are prepared by government officials on behalf of government agencies, however non-government organisations can also prepare briefings for new ministers.

You're invited Free NZFVC event in Auckland

Recognising and responding to coercive control and systemic entrapment

In this panel, speakers from Aotearoa and Australia will unpack the complexity of coercive control and systemic entrapment and explore how individuals, organisations and systems can better support victim-survivors. This is a free, in-person event.

A video recording will be made available after the event.

Date: Monday 11 March 2024.

Time: 5:30-7:00pm.

Location: Waipapa Taumata Rau, University of Auckland, City Campus.

Free. Registration required by 8 March 2024.

You will receive room details and confirmation of your registration. We will send a reminder closer to the event.
